Theme

Saint-Giles Pilgrimage, takes you along the southern section of the Hexagon's very own medieval pilgrimage trail. Recently-resuscitated and labeled the GR 700 or Regordane, it is a leisurely, 60-mile/83-km walk across scenic and undulating lowland.

You follow an ancient Roman trail along the Gardon Valley, through classic Mediterranean Garrigues countryside, traverse a series of charming hill-top villages en route and stay in the best of accommodation: stone 'mas' when out-of-town, two-star standard hotels when in town.

Pilgrims have walked this sacred path since the tenth century, but the preceding period was one of Roman dominance and subsequent invasions by Vandales, Wisigoths and Saracens. Charlemagne's calming influence is writ large across the landscape; and both the Camisard Rebellion and the Nazi occupation left their mark.

The magnificent walled cité of Aigues-Mortes

Experience a master-class in French history and enter Roman Nemasus [Nîmes] by a unique 'back door'. Then stride out across the picturesque Costières region, with its Roman vineyards, and past the first tall reeds that signal your arrival in the Camargue delta.

In days of yore, the ancient 'port' of St Gilles-du-Gard, and its fine abbey, were reason enough to walk the 211 kilometres from Le Puy-en-Velay. Nevertheless, for many pilgrims it signaled an important staging post en route either to the Promised Land or Santiago de Compostella; and when the port became silted up, the Crusaders and many a pilgrim continued onto The Holy Land via Aigues-Mortes.

Thus our decision to allow you to do the same: to enjoy the contrasting scenery as you hike from the Cevennes foothills across Garrigues and Costières to St-Gilles in Camargue; and then continue onto the Mediterranean Coast, and the magnificent walled cité of Aigues-Mortes, via a section of the 'Arles Route' [via Toulousana] and a variety of Camargue canal paths.

Saint-Giles Pilgrimage is the chance for everyone to enjoy France's forgotten medieval pilgrimage on a light walking holiday to the Med.

7-night Itinerary¹

Day 1 Arrive in Vezénobres. Train to Alès where your transfer to Vezénobres awaits (transfer included in your fees). Enjoy a ramble around this fine medieval village lying in the Cevennes foothills. Night in Vezénobres.

Day 2 Vezénobres to Moussac.
[8 miles-12½ kms, +55 ms, -85, approx. 5 hours.]
The Gardon is extraordinarily wide at Ners, with its stone bridge, and the fortified hamlet of Lascours a real treat. The views over the Garrigues are splendid and the wine very much AOC. Collection and short transfer. Night near Moussac.

Day 3 Moussac to La Calmette.
[8 miles-13 kms, +65 ms, -60 ms, approx. 5 hours.]
After-breakfast, return transfer to Moussac. You continue your journey along the multi-faceted Gardonenque to Dions, with its fascinating geological chasm. Then wend your way through vine country to La Calmette with its historic centre or 'Circulade'. Night in La Calmette.

Day 4 La Calmette to Nîmes.
[10½ miles-16 kms, +85 ms, -130 ms, approx. 5½ hours.]
You climb and cross a fine bucolic Garrigues trail before arriving at the Nîmes hinterland. Wend your way through the Bois des Espesses en route to the Roman Tour Magna, the splendours of Les Jardins de la Fontaines and the fine historic centre. Night in Nîmes centre.

Day 5 Nîmes to St Gilles.
[9½ miles-15½ kms, +60 ms, - 80 ms, approx. 5 hours.]
Short transfer to the outskirts of Nîmes Metropole. The pleasant trail takes you through one of Europe's oldest wine domains. You arrive in St-Gilles with plenty of time to visit the Abbey and its 'crypt,' as well as walk a little of the canal if you wish. Night in St-Gilles.

Day 6 St Gilles to Vauvert.
[10½ miles/16½ kms, + 82 ms, - 56 ms, approx. 5 hrs walking]
Just when you thought your pilgrimage was over, you join the Chemin de St-Jacques de Compostelle [Arles Route] for an interesting day's hike across the northern Camargue. Night in Vauvert.

Day 7 Vauvert to Aigues-Mortes.
[13 miles/20 kms, + 56 ms, - 91 ms, approx. 5½ hrs walking time]
Your final day comprises a fine walk along the banks of Le Canal du Rhone at Sete towards the Tour De Constance of the perfectly-preserved ramparts of the ancient port and town of St Louis, Aigues-Mortes. Night in Aigues-Mortes.

Day 8 End of Tour.
Breakfast and onward journey by train to Nîmes or perhaps bus or taxi to La Grande Motte or Montpellier.
